Echelon Analytics Launches New Web Site and Domain

DALLAS —Echelon Analytics, a nationally recognized consulting firm focused on economic and financial analysis in litigation and disputes, announced today the launch of its new internet domain—ea-us.com—and a newly redesigned web site. While the firm will continue to maintain its echelonanalytics.com domain, the new domain streamlines the firm’s internet presence and improves email efficiency due to the significantly shorter nomenclature.

“One of the foundational tenets of our firm philosophy is eliminating unnecessary complexity and inefficiencies,” said Managing Member Barry Bell. “This is a simple, practical step in that direction.”

The redesigned web site provides easy access to current information on the firm’s service offerings and extensive experience in complex litigation damages analyses and testimony, intellectual property valuation, banking and financial services litigation, and forensic investigation. The new format also provides an enhanced format for Echelon’s thought leaders to share their insight on emerging issues impacting their respective areas of expertise.
